Love and Respect
A Mad Hatter Party
Strong Men, One and Two
Crime, and the Government
By Arthur Brisbane

MR. OWEN D. YOUNG, a very able man, says: "We, more than any one in the world, have an era of good feeling, not only in our own country but elsewhere."

We need the friendly feeling of other nations, undoubtedly, and should like to have it. However, when a man owes you money he rarely loves you, and we know the real feeling toward us of Europeans that owe us ten billions, plus interest.

The "good feelings" of other nations is beyond our control. But their RESPECT we can command.

Enough flying machines, submarines, swift cruisers and common sense, would guarantee, from Europe, respect and polite talk.

That's the next best to being loved by them—something not easily arranged.

At the Mad Hatter's tea party, as you well remember, one of the guests put "the very best butter" in his watch, but even that could not make the watch run.

"Nothing seems to please it," said the disappointed guest.

In New York yesterday the Federal Reserve reduced the discount rate to 2 1/2 per cent, lowest in history. Wall Street was expected to be happy.

But "nothing seems to please it" either. Stocks went down from one to 13 points, those who recently bought without thought, turning the other way and selling, more foolishly, without reason.

"They are sorry now that they bought originally. They will be sorry later that they sold."

Kemal Pasha, strong man of Europe No. 2, Mussolini being strong man No. 1, has 10,000 of his Turkish fighting men entrenched on a mountain. The Kurds, Mohammedans like the Turks, are Orthodox Mohammedans rejecting Kemal's latest changes in their religion.

Rome in Kemal's army might even desert to the Kurds. They will resent Kemal's order compelling them to wear hats with brims, instead of the old fez, and fear that the order will deprive them of paradise.

The Koran tells them to pray with their heads covered, their foreheads touching the earth. They can't do this with a derby hat, because of the brim.

In these days, somebody murdered may be found almost anywhere. New York is excited about a murder.

To a newspaper telling of his killing plans, and carries them out.

In Chicago a useless automobile is thrown on a junk pile. The police find it the body of a murdered "alcohol racketeer."

Murders announcing their crimes in advance, striking without provocation or reason, are a sufficient worry.

In addition, New York deals with the "building racket," endangering and destroying life when racketeers fail to make blackmail arrangements with builders.

"Our efficient civilization" will be completed eventually to do something about a crime organization, with as income as great as that of the national government.

Dr. Wu, head of the Chinese mission to Lepers, says China neglects control of leprosy. He has seen "thousands of lepers leading a dog's life." Eighteen out of 64 districts have leper settlements.

Not China alone is interested in the fact that 1,000,000 of its subjects are victims of a dreadful plague.

Where leprosy spreads, other plagues may spread. And some ten thousand times as dangerous as leprosy, might reach out to western countries.

Grandi, Italian foreign minister, expresses regret that Italian students should have "demonstrated" impudently before the French consul at Bari. That incident is closed.

But now Poland is excited because of a new "border case." A Polish border guard, according to the German statement, passed the frontier, refused to put up his hands when ordered, and shot and killed.

Where gunpowder is an explosion is always possible. Heaven we have not guaranteed any European country against war.

He was taken ill at his office early this month and on the advice of physicians went to Peterboro for a rest. It was understood by his friends here that heart trouble had shown some improvement. He was 62 years old.

Members of his family joined him at his summer place and were with him at the end.

Hundreds See Father Plunge After He Kills Family in New Haven Park

New Haven, Ct., June 21 (AP)—Ray C. Spang, of Fifth st., Ansonia, mentally unbalanced, today threw his wife and all four of their children over the edge of West Rock, a cliff in the city's park system, and later jumped to his own death.

Spang, who was 35, was a war veteran and recently returned home from the Brooklyn Naval hospital. He had been lately employed by a manufacturing concern in Seymour, the adjoining town to Ansonia.

Three bodies were recovered from the base of the cliff early this afternoon. Two children's bodies are at a hospital.

Anonimous police reported that Spang and his family left home this morning for a day's outing at the rock.

PLUNGES TO DEATH

The dead: Ray C. Spang, 35; Mrs. Spang, 33 wife; Helen, 10; Lorraine, seven; Raymond, five; Donald, three.

Spang leaves a sister, Mrs. Ruth Johnson, of New York City.

The man dived 75 feet down the face of the rock after he had thrown his victim over and on a protruding ledge at dawn. He was there more than an hour, occasionally tossing a pebble into the air.

A city fireman was lowered by his fellows to within a few feet of the man and he tried to engage Spang in conversation.

It was not successful, he reported.

Taking off his shoes and blouse, Spang jumped and was seen going through the air for 70 feet or more, a prelude drop.

From above the man was seen to fall over and over and then disappear and later police found his body.

Hundreds of persons swarmed up the cliff.

Mellon Statement Opens Way for Campaign of "Good Times" Forecasts

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, June 21—A determined Republican campaign, personally directed by President Hoover, and aimed at convincing uneasy business that things are really not as bad as they seem, was put under full steam today.

The reassuring statement on business conditions made by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon last night, simultaneously with the optimistic radio speech of Senator James E. Watson, Senate leader, were merely the opening gun of this campaign. Others will be fired at regular intervals while business endeavors to digest and assimilate the new tariff draft set before the country.

TARIFF BOARD SHAKES UP

One of the most important moves made by Congress adjourns in reorganization of the tariff commission. There is to be a complete overhaul of this more or less moribund body, which has been in existence for all kinds of criticism ever since the tariff act of the past Congress is to be brought in, and the commission energized from top to bottom.

And following this step, President Hoover plans to appear to the country himself as to general business conditions and the outlook for the future. These will come when Mr. Hoover leaves the capital, probably in mid-July, for a leisurely swing through the country to the far west.

The primary object of the President's trip is a rest and vacation from Washington, where he has had Congress on his hands almost continually since his inauguration. He will also be able to see the country and get a better idea of the "return of prosperity" through the agency of the National Bureau of Economic Research.

It is the stage set for the war for control of the tariff commission. The Democrats have already accepted the issue and charged their own platform accordingly. The Republicans are also ready to fight.

Bedside Sessions in Fairfax Probe

Testimony of passengers injured in the crash of the steamship Fairfax and the tanker Plinkie off Boston on June 10 will be taken at their bedside in Currier hospital next week by federal inspectors investigating the disaster which cost 48 lives.

Capt. John Stewart and Charles Lyons, constituting the board of inquiry that has examined members of the Fairfax crew during the last week at the Appraiser's Store, have adjourned the hearing to take the statements of the hospital patients.

When the hearing closed the inspectors issued a joint statement in which they predicted they would make their findings in about 10 days and decide whether they shall file officers of Fairfax on charges of negligence, incompetency and recklessness.

The statement given out by the Federal inspectors is as follows: "We have now heard all the evidence and persons will be testified before the case is finished, we will hear them."

"It will take about 10 days to transcribe the stenographic notes and no decision will be rendered until the evidence has been carefully considered."

"If we find there was probable negligence, incompetency, recklessness, or recklessness on the part of Capt. Brooks, or any licensed officers of the Fairfax, charges will be preferred and a trial held."

5000 INJURED AS BOMBAY POLICE STOP PARADE

Nationalist Procession Broken Up: Leaders Call for a General Strike

LONDON, June 21—Five hundred persons were injured, many seriously, in the rioting that ensued when Bombay police broke up a huge Indian Nationalist procession today at the Malabar esplanade, according to a Central News dispatch.

The Indian National Congress, the body which had staged the parade for review before Mohl National, congress leader, called for an immediate general strike and stoppage of all business.

It was one of the most tense situations since the inauguration of the civil disobedience campaign. Thousands of Nationalist volunteers and sympathizers had gathered on the streets about the esplanade, but were held back by hundreds of police to prevent the violation of regulation forbidding assembly there.

300 IN HOSPITALS

A number of persons had been injured earlier in three charges of the constabulary with their clubs to clear the esplanade, which had been crowded since the dawn.

About 300 persons were treated for minor injuries, said from 200 more sent to hospitals. The police force called out to deal with the crowd consisted of 400 foot police, 50 mounted police and 300 officers.

Troops stood by throughout to act in the event the police were unable to cope with the situation.

RAN ON PROCESSION

The disturbance had its beginning last night when the authorities, learning of the Nationalist plan to pass in review before Nehru, issued the order forbidding access to the esplanade by Nationalist volunteers.

The order announced in the afternoon and was accepted by the Nationalist authorities as affording another law to disobey. The volunteers and sympathizers began to congregate in the esplanade before daylight, proceeding even the police there.

The procession was to begin at 10 p. m. At 8 a. m. police took their places about the esplanade. The magistrate ordered the demonstrators to disperse, but the order was ignored. About 250 police then were ordered to charge the crowd with their clubs. Three charges were made within a half hour.

Police Believe Capone Gunman "Planted" Fo's Old Weapon at the Body to Get Revenge

Chicago, June 21 (AP)—The revolver used in the murder June 9 of "Jake" Lingle, Tribune reporter, has been identified and its ownership traced, it was revealed today.

The weapon, police said, belonged to Frank Foster, formerly leader in the George (Bugs) Moran gang, but more recently aligned with the Capone gang. Foster, however, believed to have disposed of the gun prior to the Lingle slaying.

"PLANTED" GUN TRAIL

Foster left town, having learned that the ownership of the gun had been traced to him, police said. Even though he is not suspected of having killed the reporter, Lingle, Foster decided the town was getting "too hot" for him.

Police believe the murder of Lingle was a gang affair and that the gun was connected with the Moran-Albino North Side group. They believe Foster gun was "planted" deliberately with the intention of turning suspicion upon him, thus "planting" the gun on him.

But Foster, the police believe, disposed of the gun prior to the Lingle murder. "They want to know to whom, and they have started a hunt for the gun," police said.

At this time, police believe, the door is usually open, and Gaffney at once became suspicious. He slipped to the door and was open when a shot rang out inside.

Throwing open the door and drawing his revolver, Gaffney leaped in to find the proprietor on the floor, clutching his wounded leg with one hand and pointing the other with the other.

According to the policeman, the man, who was lying on the floor, was clutching his wounded leg with one hand and pointing the other with the other.

Clouds of Pastel Chiffon float All About

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, June 21.

SOFT CHIFFONY frocks bloom beneath summer evening skies adding their quota of beauty to all frocks, and roof restaurant scenes with its soft lights, flower-filled air and soft music lifting through green clad trees. Not for many seasons have summer night frocks been so picturesque or appropriate to the season and surroundings.

Soft chiffons in ethereal shades of blue and yellow, flower pinks in delicate shades, soft greens and georgias with touches of silver, all of these appear on the evening scene in long graceful, cleverly draped models that are the arms of chic and grace.

Despite the femininity of the mode, the tailored frock continues to attract, but it must be said that the tailored effect is tempered with charming touches and very feminine details. These dresses are the special delight of the young, smart woman who finds them particularly adapted to her needs.

The exceedingly smart but simple frock shown on this page was sketched recently at Longhamps and an is an eloquent demonstration of what the well-dressed woman designer is wearing over here.

The dress itself is of light weight black kasha—with interesting cut-out pieces on the bodice and the skirt. A shoulder yoke, crossing the back and just visible at either side in front, and a little vest, are of cool green linen stitched in black. The narrow belt is of the same material. The small beret of black and green knitted wool which completes the color scheme is probably an Agnes model.

The very summery evening frock is from the newest collection of Chacott. It is of soft yellow chiffon of silver lines ribbon on the bodice and skirt. The dress princess line of the frock is smartly softened by adding a draped and shirred effect on each side of the skirt. These rows of shirring are at either side and back. The ensemble is completed by matching suede gloves.

Back to Short Dresses

By GUSTAVE LADY DATES
Universal Service, Special Cable

Acad. Eng. June 21—Acad was brilliant again yesterday, and short dresses abounded to bear out the decision English women have made—that the long skirt is unsuited for afternoon wear. Nevertheless, there was many of the fashionable still following the Paris note.

Mrs. Anita Loos Emerson was one of the many Americans present. She wore a flowered tulle de Chine gown with a broad-brimmed catinole hat, and carried a sunshade which matched her gown.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cudahy of New York arrived with a party of friends. Mrs. Cudahy wore a black and white chiffon ensemble. Other Americans noted were Mr. and Mrs. Claude Fisher and Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Robbins, all of Los Angeles. Mrs. Fisher was attired in apple-green crepe de Chine, and Mrs. Robbins in fared chiffon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Jourdan of New York also were present with a party. Mrs. Jourdan was quite chic in a mauve ensemble.

Tercentenary Pilgrimages—No. 12

THE PLYMOUTH ROCK, PLYMOUTH.

The climatic point of interest in a sojourn along the Pilgrim Shore is surely reached at Plymouth, which has become an American shrine. Yearly, its places of historical importance are visited by tourists from the cities of the Southwest and West coast, as well as nearer localities. And the first question which they ask is: "Where is the Plymouth Rock?"

At the foot of Cole's Hill it rests, as near as possible in its proper location. Tradition and the consensus of opinion among the Pilgrims set foot on the shore of a country destined to become a great nation. The boulder has been rightly called "The Corner Stone of a Nation." The story of the rock is awe-inspiring. It has been a traveler of greater magnitude than the Pilgrims in their stupendous undertaking of crossing the ocean in the Mayflower. The Rock has moved about Plymouth, too. It stayed its period in the Town Square, then moved along the Old Massachusetts Bay Path, now State Highway No. 1, or along the coast. A passenger steamer leaves Boston every morning at ten o'clock for those who wish to enter as did the Pilgrims by water. MONDAY—The Flitch Tavern, at Bedford.

MOVIE LOVER
SETS HEART
ON HAMLET

Edmund Lowe, who plays the part of a gruff Don Juan of the past in "The Bad One" at Loew's, Monday, wants to play Shakespeare. The ambition took root while Lowe was a student at Santa Clara University in California, in the four years of his attendance there he appeared in Shakespearean plays sponsored by the dramatic society, enacting the roles of Hamlet, Iago, Romeo and Cassius. The training, though it earned him no money and only local fame, was not wasted for it enabled him to get his first Broadway roles that of Marc Antony opposite Florence Lawrence, but, as luck would have it, this was a benefit for the Actors Equity Association. That was the last of Shakespeare, but Lowe hasn't given up hope.

Known throughout Hollywood for her novel and unusual style of clothes, Kay Francis surprised the movie colony recently by smoking long, black cigarette in a long, white holder. These cigarettes were prepared for Miss Francis at her request by First National Pictures, Inc., producers of "A Notorious Affair," in which she plays a prominent "camp" role and which is now at the Keith-Albee. She stated that she had a fine chance to display her charming voice and acting ability. The cigarettes help her to do her vamping more effectively, it is said.

1000 at Legion Auxiliary Convention

SECOND DAY of the 11th annual convention of the Massachusetts Department Auxiliary, American Legion, being held at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, was a busy one.

Delegates include Mrs. May Coberton of Middlesex County, Mrs. M. E. Murlack of Suffolk County and Miss Helen Eason of Melrose. (Staff photo.)

Gloucester Woman Is Legion Auxiliary Head

By NANCY BREWSTER

The election of Mrs. Lillian M. Burham of Gloucester as president of the Massachusetts department, American Legion Auxiliary, ended a bitter contest for the office and resulted in the defeat of Mrs. Winifred E. May of Bridgewater, former state vice-president.

So close was the fight that it took hours for the tabulators to arrive at results, and not until late last night were the hundreds of delegates to the auxiliary convention at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, informed of the victorious candidate.

The three-day convention ends today with the presentation of the newly elected officers. They are: Vice-president, Mrs. Emma Lacey, Mrs. Orilla T. Adams, Mrs. Gertrude MacLaughlin, secretary, Mrs. Anna Maleski, treasurer, Mrs. Lettie M. O'Brien, chaplain, Mrs. Marie Laravie, delegate-at-large, Mrs. Mary Gennery, Mrs. Mary Murphy, Mrs. Elizabeth Macomber, Miss Geraldine Francis, Mrs. George Knowlton, Dr. Mary Chase and Miss Genevieve Burns.

FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Legion officials, veteran hospital medical directors and department presidents of other states visited the convention session yesterday bringing words of encouragement to the body and lauding not only the future need of the auxiliary but the work of the thousands of women devoted to service and in rehabilitation of the ex-service man.

The presence of Mrs. Mary V. Marra of Des Moines, Iowa, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary was an added attraction. She spoke at great length, outlining the stand of the auxiliary on various activities and phases of national welfare.

Adequate national defense was the only assurance of peace, she stated, in an eloquent plea for the wholehearted support to such a policy by auxiliary members.

She urged the members to "get behind the youth" that the insidious influence of "radical" propaganda of "baiters" preventing young girls and boys in the country with sound purposes could be counteracted and combated.

"It is your job to rid the country of these radical perverts and Nazis trying to get behind the youth, to start them off, to defeat our principles and to set up a machinery that if not combated now will be difficult to destroy later on," she said.

She stated that if not combated now will be difficult to destroy later on, she said.

SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR

It is the same today. Mrs. Marra, later in a short interview, expressed as her personal opinion the hope that Congress would defer the vote on the naval treaty until serious and profound consideration had been given to the project. She felt the advice of experts should be taken in preference to all others and that if they thought an eight-inch gun should be had instead of the six-inch, that should be so.

The Veterans Bureau has fully demonstrated the need and has justified the expenditure, Dr. Henry Ladd Ricketts of the Rutland Hospital, told the auxiliary.

200 NEW MEMBERS

"Keep this American where it belongs and what it should be," Mrs. Francis W. Marshall, secretary, vice-president of the Massachusetts department, Daughters of Union Veterans, said, in bringing the greetings of her body to the American Legion Auxiliary. Greetings also came from Rhode Island and New Hampshire departments.

Col. William Blake of the U. S. Veterans Bureau in Boston lauded the activities of the auxiliary, assuring the women that without their assistance, sympathy and co-operation the work of his bureau would be unable to go on.

Others who spoke included Col. A. H. Pierce of the U. S. Veterans Hospital at Northampton, Hugh Hockey, Mrs. Sylvia Sutcliffe, Miss Adelaide Fitzgerald.

Miss Maleski, reporting on membership, said that 16,600 women were members of the auxiliary, representing an increase of over 3,000 over last year's report. Mrs. Elizabeth McCorhen of New Bedford, who was instrumental in getting 200 women to join the auxiliary, was presented with a gold piece as tangible expression of the auxiliary's appreciation of her splendid achievement.

New Bedford was a hot bed of radicalism, drawing into its communist folds many school children, Mrs. Maleski reported.

PLAN FOR CONVENTION

"Mrs. McCorhen as chairman of membership in New Bedford is instructing a group of junior members to be organized into a training group where they will elect their own officers, these to be drawn from the girls about of junior high school age," she said. "They will be taught the manner of conducting meetings and will carry on the work of Americanism on a junior scale and in a city where the spirit of Communism is rampant among the children of foreign element. It is felt that these juniors may through their connection with the auxiliary and the educational program laid out for them, do perhaps more than we can carry forward the finest ideals of our organization."

A short meeting conducted by Mrs. Franklin Lee Bishop, national convention chairman, mapped activities of department committee chairmen that the delegates from all over the country coming to the city next October, may be hospitably and generously entertained. More than $5000 was given in cash and pledges for the entertainment of the visiting auxiliaries, with more subscriptions to follow. New Bedford and promises something big, but refused to divulge the proportions of the gift.

It enables the American people to enjoy clothing of inimitable beauty, because it reduces costs, placing fine all-wool fabrics within the reach of all.

BROKER RUINED IN STOCK CRASH

New York, June 21 (AP)—Harold Russell Ryder, headlined flash and Broadway playboy, has indicated that he handled about $7,000,000 in the eight months before the collapse of his brokerage firm, Woody & Co., which failed on Thursday for $2,000,000.

Ryder declared, it was said, that the immediate cause of the failure was the recent decline in the market, during which Stein Cosmetics stock, in which Ryder and Frank Sidis, president of the Stein Co., had a pool, fell from 25 to 8.

Another factor, Ryder indicated, was that Frank Bailey, Brooklyn financier, had lost in the stock crash last October and had demanded repayment of $1,500,000 loaned to Ryder.

This is the first instance of any American missionary's having been summarily ordered to leave on so flimsy a political basis. It is reported that Kethbun was very

In a hostess it's Graciousness

in a cigarette it's Taste

THE SUCCESS OF A HOSTESS depends upon her ability to make others feel at home; that of a cigarette, upon better taste.

HOW ELSE EXPLAIN Chesterfield's constant gains, its ever-mounting popularity with smokers everywhere?

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE for the delicate mildness and rich aroma that belong to Chesterfield, nor for Chesterfield's unique blend and cross-blend. "In a cigarette it's TASTE!" Yes, and in a Chesterfield, it's . . . "TASTE above everything!"

We state it as our honest belief that the tobacco used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price. LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

BOSTON, SATURDAY, JUNE 21, 1930

Girls Fret at Holding Up of Mail

HOW THE STORY STARTS

When Helen Smith, nicknamed "Smitty," first joined the ambulance corps and went to France her nerves were shattered by the terrible sights of wounded soldiers, but she soon became hardened.

Smitty shares a room with five girls, among them Tess, rough, good-natured idol of the company. General conditions are bad enough, but a tyrannical commandant, whom Tess christened "Mrs. Tick," adds to the hardships. A sick girl is forced to drive the car.

CHAPTER 10

Dinner is nearly over by the time I have changed. One mouthful and I finish. The soup-stew literally stinks.

"Dead dog," says Tess.

I bag a hunk of bread and an infinitesimal piece of margarine and munch.

Being tea-orderly has its compensations on a foul day like this. I am not sorry to be kept busy in the canteen setting cups and saucers and cutting bread. At least there is a fire there, although it means waiting on forty odd impatient drivers from three till six-thirty, carrying their dirty dishes to and from the kitchen, filling cups and teaurns and so on. Cook comes down to make the tea, but there she finishes. It is a fatiguing business when one has had no sleep, and usually one bitterly envies the others, snatching a few minutes rest between jobs. But this afternoon there is very little rest.

There are eleven girls from different hospitals and a record number of evacuees. An evacuation is the jolliest job of all the cases who are well enough to stand the long journey to Blythe. It is a joy to hear from them. Sometimes we jolt in and forget the empty hospital beds so soon to be filled up by these patriotic convalescents.

Unhappily, a record number of evacuees means a record number of exasperations. We know what to expect tonight.

Mail Is In But Is Held Up

The bug burst in, full of news. There is a mail in. It is being sorted now. Someone told her two hours ago. The bug burst in. That means the first batch may be delivered any time now.

On four papers. One by one the drivers come in, frozen, and their names to the bottom of the list, and demand refreshments. As fast as one can be signed to the bottom of the list, the mail comes out again. That while is diving to read this afternoon. I am to be met here, another funeral, an evacuation, a parcel of medicine from the station to such a hospital, battle, battle, battle. I've over my share of the lot. I've before they are sent out to the front. A fresh arrival, a runner of two extra convalescents at night, and one at ten. We mean, is it mostly a rumormonger or a foundation.

It is surely dark, and the rain is rising. Snow is whirling in the wind, and the rain would not surprise us. And still the mail does not arrive. Some-one complains that the tea is stone-cold. It is not my fault. If I have asked that, lady, let a cook once to keep the tea hot!

I have asked that, lady, let a cook once to keep the tea hot!

The girl does not believe me. I advise her to tackle cook herself. She retorts that it is my business, not hers. Is she tea-orderly or am I? I retort suitably—and in the middle of the argument the mail arrives, a big batch of letters and a huge bag of parcels. The letters are taken to commandant's room to be sorted. Heaven knows when they will be sent.

It is a queer thing that, though efficient beyond words at everything else, commandant seems to take a delight in seeing how slow I am to sort the mail. The only thing she cannot do is to sort out the letters and fly to the W. C. with my spoils.

The first, fourth—three large bottles—two tins of ginger biscuits, a box of chocolate to eat with them, a hundred cigarettes! There! Poor mother, she doesn't know I am not a girl. I am a woman! I give them to the wounded Tomkins, that is why she keeps me so literally supplied.

I open the second parcel. Handkerchiefs, smelling-salts, a lavender bag, a writing-

FREE PLASTIC SAFE IS WRECKED

An amateur attempt to "blow" a five-story safe in the office of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Co., 720 Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, was discovered by H. G. Scrampton, the manager, today.

On opening the office on the second floor of a building just off Central st., Scrampton found the door covered with plaster from the walls, the safe door bulging, but still intact, nitroglycerin, smokeless powder, burglar's tools, gloves and a brief case.

Police believe two "shots" of "smoke" were used, the second being so powerful it blew out, shattering the walls and frightening away the burglars.

The safe door was jammed by the explosion and an expert was required to open it.

As it happened, the burglars would have had little reward for their pains had they opened the safe, for it contained only a small run of money, the company banker's tools, a brief case, gloves and a brief case.

Reins was obtained through the main door of the building, and two doors in the safe door with the wire attached, and a bottle of nitroglycerin was lying near by, together with some smokeless powder. The brief case, with a Jimmy and other tools, was lying on a desk, the former apparently having been used to carry tools.

An attempt had been made to open the door on the chamber's steel stage.

CITES CLERKS' $1,000,000 IN BOOST IN PAY HAYWARD WILL

The junior clerks employed at the Registry of Motor Vehicles, who have asked a revision of salaries and positions, received an increase in 1927, along with other state employees, which cost the taxpayers $2,500,000. It was stated today.

Carl A. Raymond, budget commissioner, said in 1927 the increase of pay for junior clerks was increased $100 a year, making the payroll for 13,888 state employees $2,146,100.21 on November 30, 1928. On November 30, 1927 it was $19,916,073.38, he pointed out.

The classification system has been in operation for 10 years. Commissioner Raymond said, and has been revised and approved several times, prevailing among all state employees, and any change would require the approval of the Governor and council.

"This range," said Commissioner Raymond, "is it applies to junior clerks is better than in outside employment."

It was also pointed out that the clerks are assured of practically permanent employment, with generous vacations each year, and none are dismissed.

Film-Fram Artist Gets Three Months for "Ham And" Act

Everett Judge Elijah Adlow, in mistrial that John J. Daley, alias Connelley, was a "good film-maker."

From evidence offered during the prosecution of larceny in 1928, it was shown that Adlow had a passion for ham and eggs, and in his mind he was a "good film-maker" and occasionally would "devote" in cigarettes.

For stealing 106 pounds of ham and 30 dozen eggs by means of false checks, he was given a three months' sentence. For selling Louis Perrot of Glen St., Somerville, two cases supposed to contain 1000 pounds of cigarettes, but instead contained only old newspapers, for $60, he received a similar sentence. Through a river path lined with myriad private yachts, one of Yale's greatest treasures was seen. The record race, since four mile events became the vogue between the Crimson and the Blue After a hopeful start, Harvard was swift. In this record-challenging Yale boat.

Five and a half lengths of pure Thames river water separated the two boats. The Yale crew pulled out to the finish at the railroad bridge, but there was one source of satisfaction reserved for that section of the race. The boat was not rooted for Harvard.

Yale did not do away with the downstream record for the course, a mark produced by Crimson boat.

Whisking along with an ebb tide and aided by a following wind, Yale made its four miles in 20 minutes 9-5 seconds. Harvard's record was set by a couple of boat lengths as the Red crossed the start by seven and a half seconds.

Yet, record or no record, it was a Yale victory, and that's what most of the colorful gathering must necessarily have expected. Advance indications, in fact, pointed so inescapably that the Yale varsity boat crew coached by Edward O. Leander what there was an apparent falling off in interest among the yachting aristocracy.

That was the price tradition paid for Yale's complete domination of the regatta. The varsity boat crew's second place, and Yale's victory went no further in the regatta which its varsity victory climaxed.

By the time Yale was within a half mile of the finish it had extended its advantage to seven lengths, but that gap could not be maintained.

Francis Colliero-Mannsfeld, the 19-year-old, Austrian-American, broke away from Harvard's shell, raised the tempo of his own strokes and cut down a full length and more on Yale in the final four furlongs.

It was a vain effort, but a courageous performance, with Harvard sprinted at the end, but it had to row its own race. Any effort to match the first movement of the Blue would have been suicidal.

The Blue covered the first two miles in 9 minutes 53.2 seconds and that is what one might call a record for the event. The mile that is what, even in a two-mile sprint.

WILL Stribling, knocked out of the ring by Von Erch's first punch, hooked his arm on the jaw in the first round of their scheduled 10-round bout but he was last night.
 Stribling didn't grab, hold or clutch. He fought like a champion, moving forward continuously and forcing the issue from the outside.
 Von Forst, on the other hand, was slapped by his bewilder by Georgean's unexpected rush. At all events, he was unable to unstraddle himself enough to land effectively on either hand during the brief combat.
 Spectators, the greatest thronging in the history of the professional fight, went away convinced that he can be as strong as Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey, who were taken down by him last night.
